AAAAAAARRRRGGGG

BRIEF!
A

DOCTOR,
PLEASE
HELP THIS...
OH,
FIDDLESTICKS!

It's January 2012 and everybody is hurrying to their computer screens to read the revolutionary web comic known as Beluga Weekly (apart from those who are still in the middle of breakfast). This was the year that the world was introduced to regular appearances from various different fish characters. For those of you who might be wondering where this idea came from, it all began on a seaside holiday I spent with my family where I got to go out on a boat and do some fishing. I didn't catch anything, but I remember quite vividly watching a bucket fill up with mackerel as the other participants successfully made a catch. The little things gasped as one by one they fell dead. It made me feel sad. Now I am much older, it has occurred to me that fish don't really have any personality like dolphins or our other friends of the deep. This is why they don't seem to matter much. And neither do any of my drawings. So I decided to start adding these "awkward fish" to the comic strip. If you would like to see these fish reenacting famous movies in 4 panels, check out my comic book series, New Stuff.
